WHEELING:

Wednesday Morning, Dec. 28, 1859.

THE numbers of the Congressional Globe, for the last week, show much debate and much anxiety on the part of a portion of the House of Representatives to have a good time during the holidays, and to leave the country to take care of itself the meanwhile. We are glad that this proposition came from the side of the House it did, and that it was mainly and almost unanimously supported by that side. Not because we care anything about who makes or votes for a motion to adjourn for a week or two-for one side is just as apt to move and vote this as the other, but coming as it does just now from the dis-Union side it carries a meaning with it .--If that side of the House are sincere in their belief that the Union is in peril, and in their professions of sorrow at the approaching calamity, they certainly have a singular way of manifesting their grief .--While the ship is sinking, they propose to spend a week or a fortnight in social eno joyment and merriment. Their relish for the holidays was never stronger. They are anxious to devote several days to the pleasant festivities which Christmas week always brings in the South. We are not now considering whether devotion to the interests of the country ought to keep them at their posts. But if they are oppressed, as they pretend to be, with an overwhelming sense of the danger to which they are now subjected, it really seems to be no time for hilarious celebrations and unrestrained merry-making The very proposition on their part to spend the fortnight thus is an indication that they do not regard themselves in very imminent danger. Of course they do not. They know well enough that such men as represent the North in Congress have no more designs upon them and their constituents than the conservative men of the South have upon the North. There is not a man among them who would not sit down to his Christmas dinner at home with as little fear of being disturbed now or hereafter by the unlawful intrigues of the Republican party as he ever cherished in his life. We do not wonder that they have their old and natural desire to be with their families as usual during the holidays. They would have nothing but the recollection of their own speeches to interfere with their customary enjoyment.

. WE have been receiving and reading for some time back, a large quarto paper called the Albion, published in New York, now in its thirty-seventh volume. It is a most interesting paper. It is unlike any other paper that we know of. It is filled with admirable and critical essays upon, and reports of European doings and happenings, especially those of England, and still more especially those among what are called the high life portion of the British people. There is nothing American about the paper at all, its object being to furnish the English people residing or sojourning in this country, a weekly digest of all that could interest them in England.

The selections of this paper are made by some rare expert, and exceed almost anything we have met, for family use.

THE female nose in America is now the abject of philosophical discussion. A German traveler says of our ladies-"They cannot be called, in general, beautiful, because they are apt to be wanting in that fullness of form which perfect beauty requires; and because the majority of them have long noses!" The Home Journal asks if the length of the American nose is owing to the fact that the sex in our country, do not allow themselves to be snubbed?

WE call attention to the advertisement of Martin's Franklin House, Washington, D. C. We can assure those who wish to visit and stop awhile in Washington, that had indicated a wish from the beginning they will find it both a comfortable and an to gratify a number of gentlemen, who economical house.

[Special despatch to the N.Y. Tribune of yesterday.]

THE HOUSE.—Mr. Sherman was strengthened by the proceedings in the House yesterday. His prompt and decisive demand of Mr. Smith, if any personal reflection was intended in his offensive inquiry, if the House wished a murderer or theif in the chair, produced much effect, and was followed up by a proper rebuke from Mr. Curtis. Though the record subsequently showed that he lacked four votes of an election, he really wants but two as Mesars. Reynolds and Davis both are prepared to determine the contest when their votes will become decisive. The responsibility directly devolves on Messrs. Clark and Biggs.

The Democracy will probably return to Mr. Bocock, though Mr. Maynard and others want compliment -v votes, in consideration of their efforts to bring in the Southern Opposition.

It is given out by leading Democrats that Messra Adrain, Riggs, and Davis, are seady to fall into line when required, though it is denied by their friends. The nomination for Governor of New Jersey has been suggested to Mr. Adrain. The the Southern Opposition by presenting a shoice between Mr. Sherman and a Demoplan is to have these votes, and then coerce crat. This programme will fail, as a por-tion of the Southern men will not accept such a caudidate under any eircumstances.

EXTRA BILLY SMITH DRINKS AND SPEAKS AL TERNATELY.

WASHINGTON .- Thirty-Fourth Gongress First Session.—Mr. Moore, of Ky., (Smith, of Va., having yielded the floor) offered a resolution, which was read for information, that Alexander H. Boeteler be declared Speaker of the House for the thirty-sixth

Messrs. Bingham and Barksdale objected the resolution as out of order. Mr. McClernand moved to substitute the

That government is, or ought to be, instituted for the common benefit, protecsince the first day of meeting, to effect an organization, and be governed by some honesty, candor and frankness, by which he himself was actuated.

Mr. Smith, of Va., resumed. He de-lared himself a sincere and loyal friend to the Constitution and the Union. He was the advocate of no new or inflammatory doctrines, wanted no modern innovations, but desired to uphold the Constitution as framed by our fathers. He replied to arguments of Republicans, founded on the Declaration of Independence, that "all men were created equal," by saying that instrument was formed by freemen, not slaves; it was freemen who proposed to an independent government. In the Articles of Confederation free inhabitants are specifically mentioned, showing slaves adoption of the Constitution, to which negroes were no parties, the Constitution ex-order for the gentleman to monopolize ken, and the vacancies be supplied by fredrinking egg-nog, while the rest was doing without? After further remarks, Mr. Smith received another tumbler of egg-nog, which he drank, bowing to the ladies in the gallery, creating much merriment.

The Wheeling Union.

[From the Pittsburgh Despatch.]
The Union, the Democratic pro-slavery organ at Wheeling, talks blood at the proposal to hold the Republican National Convention in that hospitable city of Virginia as fellows.

"The Black Rapublicans have determined not to hold their Sectional Convention iu Wheeling. They probably think that Virginia is not healthy for them-considering how fatal she was to the misslona-ries of murder sent to Harper's Ferry. It would have been a pleasant thing indeed to our citizens to entertain that black and white crowd with a pepper-and-salt re-past! Of course they drink half-and-half, and we might have given it to them rather strong—possibly some of them might have been shot. We have hardly colored folks been shot. We have harrily colored folks enough in the city to have made our city agreeable to them, but we have a very few Black Repeblicans; and we have a great many true and loyal citizens of Virginia, than they care to see in person. Possibly they feared to be done Brown. Whatever their motives, we congratulate the citizens of Wheeling that a treasonable couclave is not to be held among them."
